

Maine's Department of Marine Resources
Working Waterfront Access Protection Program

Permanent working waterfront access protection through the purchase of development rights

The Maine Department of Marine Resources (DMR), working with the Land for Maine's Future (LMF) program, provides funds to help purchase development rights in order to preserve and protect key properties on the coast that provide access to and support commercial fisheries activities. The DMR has contracted a Working Waterfront Team at Coastal Enterprises Inc (CEI) to administer and implement the Working Waterfront Access Protection Program (WWAPP). The Team works closely with fishermen, businesses, communities and other interested parties to identify the projects that best fit the WWAPP's goals and requirements. The Team also guides the planning and application process to help assure that applicants submit a complete and appropriate proposal. Once a project has been allocated funding by the Land for Maine's Future Board, the Team continues to assist each project to completion.

When a project receives funding, the working waterfront property's development rights are extinguished through the sale of a working waterfront covenant, a legally binding deed restriction held by the Department of Marine Resources. The covenant protects all current and future fisheries related uses of the land by prohibiting all conflicting non-fisheries activities (i.e. condos, marinas, restaurants). The covenant does allow a degree of mixed uses that are compatible with the primary fisheries use and provides the property owner with the flexibility to manage the property as needed to remain financially viable. The property owner also retains all other rights of ownership; that is, they are free to sell, lease, or collateralize, make their own business decisions, and enforce trespass violations. If and when the property owner chooses to sell the property, the State has a "right of first refusal" to assure that the land will be valued at its working waterfront value and thus remain affordable to those who would purchase it with the intent to continue commercial fishing activities.

There are certain criteria that DMR is looking for in potential projects. Every application is judged by a quantitative assessment of how it fairs within the context of six criteria. A highly scored project is one that is:

1. An active working waterfront which is strategically significant to the local, regional and state fisheries related economies;
2. Currently located and developed to fully support commercial fishing activities; providing key supports such as all tide access, fuel, bait, sales, and/or adequate parking;
3. Under current and emerging threat of conversion to uses incompatible with commercial fishing activities by development and changing population dynamics;
4. In a community with a clear desire to maintain and support their commercial fishing enterprises as evidenced by zoning, comprehensive plans, or written support and;
5. A critical part of the local fishing infrastructure providing key access for the area.
6. Poised to create new shoreside jobs with proposed investments described in a business plan.

Additionally, DMR is seeking individuals, businesses, coops, or communities that are:

1. Willing to develop a business/operating plan.
2. Willing to enter a permanent deed restriction to be held and monitored by the DMR assuring the prohibition of all competing non-fishing uses of the property.

Maine's Department of Marine Resources
Working Waterfront Access Protection Program
Process Outline and Timeframe for 2014

Now that additional funding supports new applications, (the November 2012 vote for the Working Waterfront bond referendum passed) potential applicants are strongly encouraged to work closely with the DMR's working waterfront team to assure that their project meets all the program criteria and that their application is complete. There are many individual facets to the application and the team is available to provide support and additional resources as needed to complete all of these pieces.

Upon completion of the application, 15 copies of the packets are to be submitted with all required supporting materials to the DMR's Working Waterfront Team (see the WWAPP Workbook pages for explanation of how to write an application). Application packets will then be checked for completeness and distributed to independent reviewers, and to staff within DMR and LMF. Applications will be reviewed and scored by the DMR Commissioner's Review Panel composed of individuals familiar with the fishing industry. The Commissioner will prepare final recommendations for funding to the Land for Maine's Future Board (LMFB) based on the Review Panel's scores and comments combined with an assessment of the business/operation plan. The LMFB will thoroughly discuss the project proposals, and vote on recommended allocations (award amounts).

In order for projects to be reviewed, scored and presented to the LMFB for approval, applicants should be aware of and keep the following timeframe in mind.

- A deadline of May 6, 2014 has been set for the next round of applications.
- If monies remain unallocated after the May deadline, a second deadline has been set for September 9, 2014.

If the allocation of funds is approved by the Land for Maine's Future Board then the remaining due diligence work will ensue. For example, projects must provide an approved appraisal, a title search, an environment site assessment, an accurate property survey, and a mortgage lenders agreement among others. How long this will take is dependent on how much was done prior to the application being submitted. It is likely that from allocation to covenant signing and delivery of the funds will take nearly a year, but could be sooner or later. This depends on the complexity of the project and the diligence of the applicant to keep working to complete all the required tasks.
